NOTE FROM THE DEVELOPMENT AND ALUMNI RELATIONS OFFICE

— JEAN S. STUTSMAN

Director of Development and Alumni

Last year I described our many changes at NTS as a chrysalis metamorphosing to take wing in time for our 60th anniversary. Little did I know that 2020 would have murder hornets, meth crocodiles, bubonic plague squirrels and a novel little coronavirus waiting to upstage us, uproot us, and scatter us to the winds of change.

But we theatre people, just like those intrepid souls willing to support us philanthropically, are a resilient bunch. We figured out how to make art in isolation. We called on some true-blue donors who pulled out their wallets to do what they could despite their own uncertain futures. We brought our students to the finish line by reinventing our courses, revising our scripts, hearing our diverse communities, learning new technologies, and finding creative solutions with even more ideas to be tested in the coming school year. We are taking the opportunity to courageously explore new approaches, to challenge our traditional ways, to revise our plans on the fly and, most importantly, to continue acting, because that's what we do!

We have always embraced our role as change leaders in the theatre arts milieu, and in the current crisis that experience is serving us well. Part of our responsiveness includes an urgent requirement to reach out to new donors and strengthen our relationships with those who have helped us in the past. The students we are training today will be at the vanguard of reinvention, conceiving novel ways to bring the magic of live theatre to ever greater numbers of people. They will be storytelling in ways we cannot yet fathom. They deserve to be well trained and equipped to take up the torch.

As an arts organization, we have always been grateful for the financial support provided to us by our funders both public and private. In this stimulating time of profound upheaval our gratitude towards those willing to share their resources in service to creativity means everything to us. We honour you in the pages that follow.

We understand that many of you simply cannot help us financially at this time. We also know that you will be back stronger than ever as soon as you are able. So, I will close by thanking you for keeping us in your thoughts, and by wishing you health, energy and courage as we navigate this plague on all our houses.

Should you desire further information on how to donate funds or engage with the Alumni Network, please feel free to contact Jean S. Stutsman at 514-653-1759 or jeanstutsman@ent-nts.ca.

PLANNED GIVING – HERITAGE AND HORIZONS SOCIETY

In these challenging times, more people are thinking about the legacy they wish to leave in this world. Adding NTS into your will is an expression of love and faith in the theatre students who will tell our stories in the future. The Heritage & Horizons Society recognizes alumni and friends who have remembered NTS through a provision in a will or other form of planned gift. NTS is grateful to the following individuals for having made planned gifts to the School through their estates, life insurance policies, annuities, authors' rights or by other means.
