I think in my family we didn't talk about my ancestors much, at all. Um... everybody was always quiet or taboo on that, so I didn't feel like I was connected to any of my... grandparents or great grandparents - I didn't know about them... much, at all. Um, my grandmother, uh - I've said that to you many times - there was like a saying in my family that all the secrets went with her into her grave. She never spoke much about anything at all. She always kept it to herself.
