Behind the Parking Lot

The story happens behind the parking lot. This character has created this OUTSIDE SPACE TO BE her home her place of safety where she waits until she could come home and "HER MONSTER" is asleep.

Consumed by this situation of domestic violence she consumes drogues she is in distress but in this space right next to the water she find her peace.

I want to portrait in this image that she feels comfortable in the uncomfortable but also I don't want to portrait victims because we use to victimize characters leaving in difficult situations I want to portrait characters that became grotesque and morbid because of the violence but they are so beautiful and strong!
